Angels Among Us

The Angel Ball raises millions for cancer research with help from some very talented friends.

On October 24, guests including Lee Daniels, Candace Bushnell, and Tommy Hilfiger flocked to Cipriani Wall Street in Manhattan for the Angel Ball, hosted by Denise Rich, Daniella Rich Kilstock, and Ilona Rich Schachter.

The event, which raises funds for Gabrielle's Angel Foundation for Cancer Research, was chaired by Marc J. Leder, Amy France, and Brian France, and honored John Paulson and Michael Vranos for their contributions to cancer research. The black-tie party was emceed by Jill Martin, and featured performances by Shoshana Bean, Chaka Khan, and Fat Joe, as well as a set from DJ Cassidy and a live auction (featuring, delightfully, a dinner for eight at Rao's with Chazz Palminteri) run by Lydia Fenet. All told, the evening raised more than $2.8 million for cancer research.

Gabrielle Rich Aouad

Gabrielle was a champion skier, an expert in horseback riding, a skilled mountain climber, fluent in five languages, loving wife and daughter, internationally successful actress and future screenplay writer.

At the age of 23 she was diagnosed with advanced stage Hodgkin's disease. After successful treatment, her cancer returned and in May of 1996 she was diagnosed with Acute Myelogenous Leukemia (AML); once more she was treated with chemotherapy.

After going into remission for the second time, she was due for a bone marrow transplant so her mother Denise, donated her bone marrow to try to save Gabrielle's life. Gabrielle Rich Aouad passed away in the fall of 1996 at the tender age of 27.

Gabrielle's final wish was to create a foundation that would help spare others the suffering that she endured. One of its goals would be to invest in research for better treatments for leukemia so that others would not have to suffer from the side effects and damage of chemotherapy and radiation.
